G/TBT/N/SWE/62	Sweden - Equipment for small domestic wastewater treatment These guidelines state the performance and/or function requirements, life expectancy, ease of use and maintenance for waste water treatment plants. To assure the correct level of protection to the surroundings, two levels of protection are suggested, "normal" and "high". Considering environmental protection, normal level prescribes a 70% reduction of phosphate and a 90% reduction of biochemical oxygen, while the high level also prescribes a reduction in the level of nitrogen. Concerning health-protection, the normal level states that there cannot be an essentially increased risk of infection. The high level requires supplementary measures. A section of the guideline deals with the location of wastewater treatment plants stating that there are no discharges into open water area sand also prescribes set distances between the plants and water catchments areas, to protect the water catchments areas from being infected.	23/01/06
