Korea – Package recycle classification regulation

The United States, supported by Canada, urged Korea to notify the regulation on package recycle labelling and allow a suitable comment period for stakeholders. The US is concerned that the classification regulation does not consider current efforts to promote recycling in other countries, and that the Korea-specific packaging requirement could disrupt trade. The US said that the measure does not refer to relevant ASTM international standards and could affect a large range of products

Korea said that this measure is under preparation and that it will notify it to the WTO with enough time for stakeholders to comment and for industries to adapt.
