Be It Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Florida:

16-02492D-08 2008886

- Section 1. Children's toy safety.--
- (1) This section may be cited as the "Children's Toys Safety Act."
- dangerous toys intended for children from being introduced into the marketplace. The Legislature also finds that by requiring independent third-party testing and certification of a toy's safety, manufacturers of children's toys will be compelled to comply with the consumer safety standards of the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission. Therefore, it is the intent of this section to require manufacturers to certify that their toys are in compliance with the consumer safety standards set by the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission.
 - (3) As used in this section, the term:
- (a) "Children's toy" means a toy or other article that is intended for use by a child 60 months of age or younger. In determining whether a toy or article is intended for use by a child 60 months of age or younger, the following factors shall be considered:
- 1. A statement by a manufacturer about the intended use of the toy, including a label on the toy or article, if such statement is reasonable.
- 2. The context and manner of the advertising, promotion, and marketing associated with the toy or article.
- 3. Whether the toy or other object is commonly recognized by consumers as being intended for use by a child 60 months of age or younger.

(b) "Enforcing authority" means the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

- (c) "Independent third party" means a nongovernmental, independent testing entity that is physically separate from any manufacturer or private labeler whose toy will be tested by the entity and that is not owned, managed, controlled, or directed by a manufacturer or private labeler.
- (4) Each manufacturer and each private labeler of a toy, if it bears a private label, which makes children's toys that are to be sold in this state and that are subject to the consumer product safety standards of the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission must notify each retailer selling the manufacturer's toys whenever it has been determined by an independent third party that one of its toys is not in compliance with the consumer product safety standards and is a hazardous product under the standards. If the retailer chooses to sell the unsafe children's toy, the manufacturer must affix on each toy delivered to the retailer a label that states that the toy does not meet the consumer product safety standards of the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission.
- (5) If a retailer selling children's toys has been advised by a manufacturer that an independent third party has determined that a toy sold by the retailer is not in compliance with the consumer product safety standards and is a hazardous product under the standards and if the retailer nevertheless chooses to sell the toy, the retailer must erect signs in every retail aisle in which toys are sold identifying the toy that does not meet the consumer products safety standards.

(6) Any test or testing program to determine the safety of toys to be sold must be conducted by an independent third party that is qualified to perform such tests or testing programs.

- (7) (a) The enforcing authority may bring an action for injunctive relief against any manufacturer that violates this section.
- (b) If the enforcing authority finds that a children's toy being distributed does not meet the safety standards of the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission and does not have a label warning the consumer that it is an unsafe toy, the enforcing authority shall issue and enforce a written stop-sale order. The stop-sale order must warn distributors to segregate any lot of toys in any manner until written permission is given by the enforcing authority to recommence distribution. The enforcing authority shall release for distribution the lot of children's toys subject to a stop-sale order only after the manufacturer has affixed to each toy a label that states that the toy does not meet the applicable safety standards.
- (c)1. A manufacturer shall be fined $500 for each children's toy found in a retail store which is not in compliance with the consumer products safety standards and does not have a warning label affixed to the toy.
- 2. A retailer shall be fined $1,000 for each retail store aisle in which an unsafe children's toy is found and which does not have a sign identifying each unsafe toy sold in the aisle.

 Section 2. This act shall take effect July 1, 2008.
